

A Culture of 'Presenteeism'

80%

of Irish professionals admit to staying late to fake workloads

63%

have called on the Irish Government to educate employers on the business benefits of flexible working

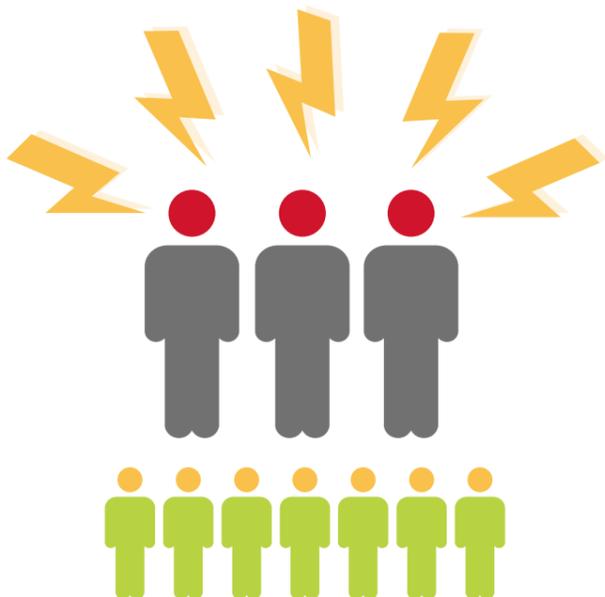

37%

believe their bosses favour staff that work longer than their contracted hours

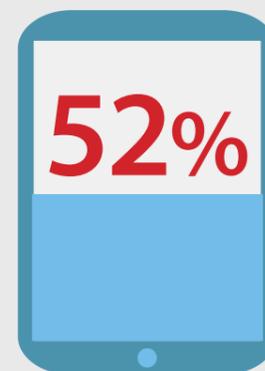

30%

feel that working away from the office will damage career progression

35%

feel that the Irish Government should provide grants or funding for flexible work technology

45%

52% say that being able to work away from the office would help them manage childcare arrangements better and 45% believe working away from the office would help them meet clients more easily